The James & Law Company's Christmas

THE CLARKSBURG DAILY TELEGRAM-WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 22,

The purpose of the News is to give Christmas shoppers an idea of the large assortment of books and other useful articles we carry that make appropriate Xmas gifts.

We wish to say frankly that it is possible, with the space at our command, to give only a very vague idea of the many good things we have in store. We hope however, to arouse your interest so that you will visit our store frequently, and that you will put an abundant supply of books on your shopping-list.

Horace Mann says, "Good books are to the young mind what the warming sun and the refreshing rain of spring are to the seeds which have lain dormant in the frosts of winter. They are more, for they may save from that which is worse than death, as well as bless with that which is better than life."

We have books for the tiny tots, the boys and girls as well as for the older ones.

The Harvester

Mrs. Porter has lavished upon this unique story all the wealth of nature-lore from her years of patient, enthusiastic study. "The Harvester." David Langston, is a man of the woods and fields, who draws his living from the prodigal hand of Mother Nature herself—selling the medicinal roots and herbs and barks, the wild mushrooms and so on, which are his for the gathering. If the book had nothing in it but the splendid figure of this man, with his sure grip on life, his superb optimism, and his almost miraculous knowledge of nature secrets, it would be notable. But when the Girl comes to his "Medicine Woods," and the Harvester's whole sound, healthy, large outdoor being realizes that this is the highest point of life which has come to him—there begins a romance, troubled and intesrupted, yet of the rarest idyllic quality. And the tale of how happiness finally evolves from the tangle, because of the very qualities which made David a man in a thousand, will prove even more absorbing than the author's former stories. Mustrations in colors and decorated wrapper and lining-pages.

The Ne'er-Do-Well

For rush of action for genuine and startling surprise, and for Mrs. Ba. cent fletion. The scene is Panama. Pictures by Christy.

Author of "The Romance of a Plain Man," "The Wheel of Life," Etc.
Miss Glasgow's art has deepened steadily with each new novel since she electrified the literary world over a dozen years ago.
This story unfolds itself among contemporary people whom she knows and depicts with searching sureness, sympathy and humor.
You add a permanent new group to your acquaintances as you follow the stormy course of Abel Revercomb's love story, and note the contrast between this contained, upbuilding man and his idler rival, swayed by impulse and appetite. They are real people, liwing their lives before you, in a sequence of events that unrolls with increasing impressiveness from chapter to chapter. We predict that this book will establish the author more firmly than ever as one of the small group of true American novelists whose work really counts.

The Money moon

By JEFFREY PARNOL. Author of "The Broad Highway," etc.

It is a real romance, that weaves in and out through the life of a sun-kissed English farm one August—oh say as recently as last year. And for originality of plot, eleverness in character delincation, beauty of diction, and above all for that human touch that makes the reader love the story and the people in it. "The Moneymoon" is going to be a very welcome book to a very, very great number of people. Price $1.25 met.

Initials Only

By ANNA FATHERINE GREEN, Author of "The Leavenworth Gase," etc.

Starting with a baffling situation, the author weaves one of her remarkable stories of a cunning criminal, a strange crime, and a clue by which the reader, going hand in hand with the detective, traces the mystery through devious and perplexing and clusive channels to the astonishing explanation. "Initials Only" is the author of "The Leavenworth Case" at her best. Price $1.30 nst.

The Prodigal Judge

Most lovable of prodigal heroes; elbquent at every bar, Falstaffian in capacity of appetite and intellect, the judge in this story is a man to be reckoned with. In him the ridiculous struggles for mastery with the sublime. The reader laughs over him and loves him, and in the end rises to a point of delighted admiration for the vagabond who still remains the high-minded, greathearted gentleman. He is the most striking character in a story of many striking characters; a romance rich in incident, hearty in humor, full flowing in a broad current of life and events. Love and hate and private faud, true friendship and evil ambition, the mysterious and unexpected, all have their place in the plot of this American novel. And the very core and focus of interest is the unforgetable, magnificent rigure of the prodigal judge.

Mrs. Ward is on her "native heath" in this novel, and she has no rival in subtle portrayal of the large mental and moral movements of modern English society. This story might be called 'Robert Elemers, Twenty Years After.' It is a vivid cross-section, richest, most cultivated, most cosmopolitan, most interesting society of our time. Not since the author first stirred up the whole thinking world of readers has she had a subject so large, so peculiarly suited to her genius.

This Household Edition presents, in an accurate text, the works of American and British poets in handsome practical crown octavo (5½x8in.) volumes, printed in clear type on opaque paper.
